Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filled in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.
- Claims 1, 2, 4-6, 11, 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Litherland et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,732,944).

Litherland discloses a fluid dispersion device comprising a substrate 112 with an outer section 128 and an aperture inner section 116, a dispersion element 114 positioned at the aperture 116 of the substrate, an actuator 120 arranged coaxially surround the aperture, wherein an outer edge of the inner section is coupled to the outer section by a plurality of resilient member 126 (see figures 9-12).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Page 3

Application/Control Number: 10/522,344

Art Unit: 3752

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

 Claims 12-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Litherland et al. in view of Berglund et al.

Litherland et al. discloses all the limitations of the claims except for the substrate adapted to carry an electrical signal. However, Berglund et al. teaches a fluid dispersion device having a substrate 61 with outer and inner sections, and actuator 73, wherein the substrate is adapted to carry an electrical signal via conductor 76 and flange 61A (see figure 4). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to have provided the device of Litherland et al. with the substrate adapted to carry an electrical signal as suggested by Berglund et al. Doing so would provide a way to energize a dispersion device.

With respect to claim 12, at the time the invention was made, it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to a person of ordinary skill in the art to provide the device of Litherland et al. in view of Berglund et al. with the resilient member that adapted to carry an electrical signal.

Conclusion

 The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The following patents are cited to show the art with respect to a fluid dispersion device: Ross et al., and Martens, III et al. Application/Control Number: 10/522,344 Art Unit: 3752
